DNA polymerase X from African swine fever virus is able to bind MgdpGTP specifically before binding DNA. This mechanism allows the enzyme to overcome Watson-Crick base pairing in order to catalyze G:G mismatch, and resolves a long standing mystery for low-fidelity DNA polymerases.